... HOW ARE THOSE SCULPTURES GOING?

There has been a lot of measuring and cutting and welding and polishing of metal. The A-team of Wal, Andrew and Jason have created the three leaves, and now it is all coming together. Remember that model that was about 20cm tall and made of cardboard? Now it's made of stainless steel and over 5m tall! Once all the leaves are together there will be another trip up the mountain to put it all in place.

The whale sundial is taking its time ... The artwork itself is progressing well, but it is a long process getting the paperwork done. Everyone is doing their best and we have all our fingers and toes crossed for the launch ☺

The platform at the Whalers Lookout is taking shape with a big thank you to Gordon and our crew of workers who are doing some great work. Down at the Surry River, Lauren has been hard at work with another crew, mowing, slashing and planting. More to come!
